Businessman hospitalized after shooting

BY DENA BISNETTE

A Waveland man remains hospitalized following surgery Wednesday morning for injuries resulting from a Monday night shooting incident at his Coleman Avenue business.

A spokesperson for Memorial Hospital at Gulfport stated that Russell Caldwell, 28, was out of intensive care Wednesday afternoon and was in stable condition following surgery Wednesday morning.

According to Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn, Caldwell left his business, Caldwell's Grocery, and was walking through the parking lot to his vehicle at about 10:40 p.m. Monday when he was shot by an unidentified man.

Caldwell reportedly threw a bag of money he was carrying at his assailant and fled to a nearby apartment complex, where two residents assisted him in calling Mobile Medic Ambulance Service, Dorn said.

Officer Brett Ladner's report stated that Caldwell told the apartment residents that the man who shot him "came from behind."

An investigation into the incident is continuing.

Bay council slates meet with board

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Bay St. Louis City Council is scheduled to meet tonight with the Bay St. Louis-Waveland Municipal School Board to discuss required millage for the school district's budget.

The council agreed earlier this week at budget meetings with the various department heads to meet with school officials to discuss the requested increase in school millage.

Under the proposed budget there will be no municipal increase in the millage but a three-fourths to 4.2 increase will be needed to fund the school district's budget.

The three-fourths increase will fund the maximum amount the city is required to set for the school's budget and the 4.2 increase will fund the maximum amount and a shortfall amount the school district is requesting.

No increase is needed for municipal budgets because of cuts in department budgets ranging from one-half percent on capital outlay to 18 and a half percent in the administrative department.

NAPOLEAN PROJECT—Workers check some of the first pilings driven for a fishing pier and boat launch facility recently on the East Pearl River at the Napolean Community. The project is one of two of its kind currently underway, with the other one nearly completed at Pearlington, County Engineer Larry Seal said. On Monday, Beat Two Supervisor Ronald Cuevas asked the board to consider setting regulations for the operation of the two facilities prior to opening them. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

County to consider regulations for boat launch, related facilities

BY DENA BISNETTE

A new boat ramp and pier at Pearlington are not quite finished, but people are already attempting to use the facility.

The ramp, construction costs for which are supposed to be partially reimbursed with funding from Bureau of Marine Resources, is located on the Pearl River at the end of Monroe Street.

In reporting to the supervisors on Monday regarding progress on the ramp and another recreational project on donated land in the Napolean Community, County Engineer Larry Seal said the Pearlington facility is "nearly completed" but there may be "one or two small things that could have to be done over."

The Napolean project, a boat ramp and smaller fishing pier, has been delayed due to the collapse of an earthen dam built for construction purposes.

Beat Two Supervisor Ronald Cuevas said he is concerned about the safety of people using such facilities before they are completed.

He said he visited the Pearlington site recently and found someone using the boat ramp, although he considered it "still in a hazardous condition" because the surface was still rough and could not provide the traction needed to bring a boat back out of the water.

Cuevas said he expects swimmers in the area to be an additional problem, and Seal said one of his inspectors reported finding a person snorkelling at the site.

In addition, the parking lot has not been surfaced with shell yet and people have parked boats and trailers on private property nearby, Cuevas added.

"We need to establish rules and regulations for these two locations before we open them," the supervisor said.

He asked that the board keep the facility at Pearlington closed until signs with cautions such as "no swimming" and "no permanent mooring" can be posted.

In addition, some sort of barricade such as a cable will be placed at the ramp entrance at least long enough to allow the construction crew to clean up the site and complete any remaining work to be done.

A cable would probably be the most useful type of barricade because it would not hamper the crew's work, he added.

"We are not here to curtail these peoples' activities," Cuevas said of those who will use the launch and the pier. "We just want to make sure these activities are safe and proper."

According to Cuevas, the two facilities are going to be turned over the Hancock County Park Commission, which presently governs the operation of McLeod Water Park in Kiln.

The Park Commission, like the Port and Harbor Commission, is not considered a fully independent board and must have the supervisors' approval for anything it does.

However, Cuevas said he feels that any restrictions on the use of the facilities and just who will have to enforce those restrictions should be worked out by the board prior to turning the matter over to the commission.

Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro asked for a board work session on the matter. A work session is considered an unofficial board meeting and the board does not take action on the matters discussed until its next official meeting. Also, work sessions are not generally attended by the public.

Perniciaro asked that the board consider hiring a harbor master because the county will have three major mooring places once the two new facilities are completed.

The third is at Bayou Cadet, where the Port and Harbor Commission is applying for Bureau of Marine Resources monies for the restoration of an existing boat launch.

He said he would like to involve some of the people using such facilities, such as members of Gulf Fishermen's Association in formulating the regulations for boat launches and the other facilities.

Jeff Taylor of South Mississippi Planning and Development District, who has worked with other entities on similar facilities including on in Biloxi, has agreed to serve as a resources person for the project.

In a related matter, Taylor and Port and Harbor Executive Director Harold Olsen asked that the board contribute part of the matching funds for the Bayou Cadet boat launch restoration.

The Port and Harbor Commission has already agreed to put up $8,000, mostly in in-kind services, as matching for a possible $2,000 Bureau of Marine Resources grant.

Waveland agrees to continue fighting railroad on speeds

BY DENA BISNETTE

Two cities have withdrawn from an interlocal agreement concerning litigation to keep railroad speed limits down, but Waveland has agreed to continue to fight.

The interlocal agreement was approved in June after Chesapeake Seaboard X Transportation Inc., also known as CSX, filed suit against several Gulf Coast municipalities in an effort to raise the speed limits for trains passing through cities to levels from 55 m.p.h. to 65 m.p.h. depending on the type of cars the trains are hauling.

The suit was filed in federal court in May after Jackson County refused to allow trains to travel more than five miles per hour on a 10-mile section of track outside Pascagoula. CSX representatives visited cities with railroad speed limits, including Waveland, and asked each one individually to repeal their local ordinances.

Waveland refused to repeal its 35 m.p.h. limit and subsequently became a defendant in the suit.

By being part of the interlocal agreement, Waveland has agreed to pay a share of the first $100,000 of the legal costs involved, with an option to continue the agreement if further costs are incurred, attorney Lucien M. Gex told the board of aldermen Tuesday.

The agreement places all the litigation in the hands of Page, Man-nino and Peresich, which represents the City of Biloxi, under the guidance of a steering committee of attorneys representing each entity involved, thereby avoiding the costs each entity would incur by employing individual attorneys.

According to Gex, Waveland was originally supposed to pay 1.39 percent and the dropping of Pascagoula and Gautier out of that agreement increases Waveland's percentage to 1.75.

Hancock County and Bay St. Louis have no railroad speed limits. Bay St. Louis had a limit at one time but repealed it in 1965 when an old law enabling trains to pass through the city was taken off the books.

Neither the county nor Bay St. Louis is a defendant in the suit, but both are included in the interlocal agreement.

Qualifying deadline for county school board seat is Friday

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

King was appointed by other school board members to serve until the first Monday of January, when the winner of the election will take office.

The election is scheduled for Nov. 3 and if needed a run-off election will be conducted two weeks later.

Food Pantry coordinates basic service to Hancock needy

Editor's Note: Following is the fifth in a series of articles being presented by the Sea Coast Echo on agencies which are partially funded by the United Way of Hancock County. The local United Way is planning a Sept. 25 kickoff for its 1987 fundraising drive. Lonnie Clayborn of Waveland is chairman of this year's drive. The goal is $65,000.

In May of 1986, the churches of Hancock County met and made plans to open a community food pantry. The state charter was obtained and the Civil Defense director offered free quarters. The Episcopal

A United Way Agency

Diocese of Mississippi made a donation for initial expenses, which included having a telephone installed, stationery supplies and basic food items.

The Hancock County Food Pantry is operated entirely through donations and with a staff of approximately 60 volunteer workers from the churches in this area. The only expenses are the monthly phone bill and the staple food items which must be purchased. Bread is donated by local bakeries and it is kept in two donated used freezers.

Each church has a box in the vestibule for the deposit of nonperishable food. The food is brought to the pantry, along with cash donated by church members.

There are many needy people in Hancock County. People come to the pantry for help who are living in tents, in cars, in shacks without running water or electricity.

There are also those who are living in nice homes but who have lost their jobs, people from every class of life. Many are terribly embarrassed that they have to ask for help.

A heartwarming circumstance for the volunteers is to see someone come in who has been helped in the past, with a small donation of food or money to help other needy people.

Each applicant for food is required to bring a referral slip from the Welfare Dept., a church, a doctor, or any charitable organization.

They are interviewed and a 4 to 6 day supply of food is bagged, according to the size of the family.

The bags of food contain peanut butter, jelly, bread, rolls, doughnuts when available, canned meats, tuna, port & beans, canned tomatoes, vegetables, fruits, soup, tomato sauce, dry beans, rice, boxed macaroni and cheese, flour, sugar, spaghetti, hand soap, laundry detergent and dish detergent.

The cost of the food that is given to each family is approximately $12 to $14, plus the bread and rolls. 10 or twelve loaves of bread or other packages of bakery goods are given to each family if they have a refrigerator.

This, with the peanut butter and jelly, helps the young children feel satisfied when the other food is gone.

The Food Pantry is open Monday through Friday from 9 to noon. It has been relocated and is now in the old jail in the back of the courthouse.

In the 14 months the pantry has been in operation, it has served 738 families, consisting of 2,407 persons.

The continued support of United Way will be a very important factor in the work of the food pantry and is very much appreciated by the directors and all the workers.

The cooler mornings this week were welcome and come just in time for high school football action.

The high school teams of Bay High, Hancock North Central, St. Stanislaus and Pass Christian are all ready for action Friday night.

St. Stanislaus and Hancock North Central will open with home games Friday night.

The Tigers of Bay High will have to go a long way to top last year's record as well as the Hawks of Hancock North Central.

Cleveland Williams' Tigers will open action on Friday night away against Stone County's Tomcats.

The rivalry between the Tigers and Tomcats has been very good in recent years with very close scores, and Friday's game should also be a close contest.

The fans enjoyed the Tigers' fine record last season and should be on hand Friday to support their team on the road.

Irvin Favre's Hawks of Hancock North Central are ready to host Pearl River, La. in a cross state rivalry Friday night.

The Hawks flew high last season and like the Tigers played an exciting type of football.

Hancock, like any other high school team, depends upon good fan support.

It is hoped the Hawks will concentrate on Pearl River and not be looking down the road to future games.

The Rockchaws of St. Stanislaus open Friday night against Pope John Paul of Slidell at Rock stadium in Bay St. Louis.

Stanislaus will start the season with new head coach Ken Lyons, so the Rocks may have a 'new look' this season.

St. Stanislaus had a large squad last season, so there should be a lot of returning lettermen in 1987.

Rockchaw stadium is located on Bookter Street and Necaise Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

The Pirates of Pass Christian will be away Friday night playing arch rival St. John's Eagles.

The Eagles have been improving each year and have been contenders in their class, so Pass best not take them too easy.

We are sure head coach Alton Wright will have the Pirates prepared for Friday's action.

Friday night should be a good football night, and we hope there will be a lot of fan support for our local teams.

Remember kickoffs are at 7:30 p.m.
See you at the game.

An item we have repeatedly written about is Handicapped Parking.

Police officers from the City of Waveland are now issuing citations for vehicles illegally using Handicapped Parking spaces.

One Waveland officer was even applauded by bystanders the other day as he was issuing a citation to a motorist for using a Handicapped Parking space.

There is a reason for establishing Handicapped Parking as there are people who are not able to get around as well as most of us.

It is also hoped that some Handicapped Parking spaces are better marked for motorists.

COLLIDER BID GETS HIGH MARKS

Mississippi's efforts to win the proposed $6 billion Superconducting Super Collider project earned the high marks of a team of out-of-state evaluators that reviewed the proposal recently.

The super collider would be a major boost to the state's economy—not only in terms of jobs and construction, but in the long-term benefits of being the home to a world research center.

Some 30 states are bidding on the research facility. Mississippi got into the competition late, but the state still has a good chance of winning the project, say officials at the Institute for Technology Development.

ITD is under contract with the state to develop the proposal. As part of the process, the agency brought in a team of outside evaluators to review it before sending it to the U.S. Department of Energy, the federal agency that will select the site.

The team reported to ITD that Mississippi had "an excellent chance of winning."

The team reportedly was impressed with the Selma Chalk formation underlying the proposed site, and the availability of transportation and power to the site. Also mentioned was the state's progress in the areas of employment, education, and housing.

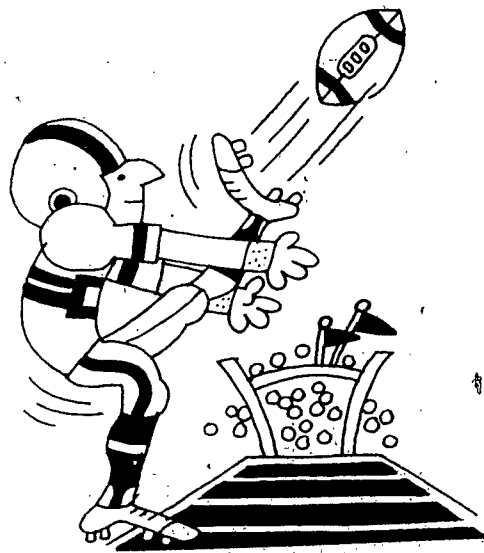

The soil formation in the area of the collider is an important consideration since the project includes a 53-mile tunnel.

Mississippi needs this project. The state needs the 4,000 jobs the project will provide, the project's annual budget of $270 million, and the prestigious visitors the project surely will attract.

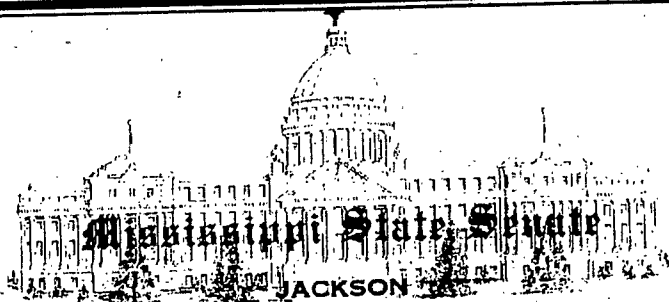

But an even bigger boost will be the effect such a project would have on the state's long-term economy and image.

BY SENATOR GENE TAYLOR

"Imagine Mississippi as the technology center for the world. It's closer to reality than you may think."

The action taken by the Mississippi Senate and House of Representatives during the Special Session of the Legislature was a boost to Mississippi's bid to win a $4.4 billion federal research project that would indeed make Mississippi the technology center for the world.

The above slogan was created for Mississippi's proposal to obtain the Superconducting Super Collider whose purpose is to house high energy physics experiments to help scientists in their search for clues to the nature of matter and the forces that hold it together.

The actual facility will be a 53-mile in circumference "pipeline system" 100 feet underground. The four-county site chosen for the facility—Lowndes, Oktibbeha, Clay and Noxubee—was selected on the basis of its excellent geological characteristics required for the site.

However, the project would benefit the entire state because of the thousands of jobs, millions of dollars in revenue, and international recognition that will be brought to Mississippi.

The legislation passed during the Special Session is designed to enhance Mississippi's bid for the project. With Alabama and Arkansas having joined in support of Mississippi for the project and with the excellent geological, educational, cultural and transportation opportunities afforded by Mississippi coupled with the commitment of state leaders and people throughout the state, I think that Mississippi has a very good chance at winning this project.

The legislation basically creates a Super Collider Authority within the Governor's office to manage the project, which is expected to have a total employment impact of more than 10,000 jobs per year during the seven-year construction period and more than 7,000 jobs per year during the 25-year operation period.

The State College Board would be authorized to create an Institute for Math and Computing Sciences and an Institute of High Energy Physics and it is the intent of the Legislature that all of our public universities participate in the research opportunities provided by the project.

The project would be funded by the issuance of up to $500 million in bonds to be paid off by the tax revenue generated by the project. Let me emphasize that these bonds bill will not be issued nor other significant action taken unless Mississippi is chosen for the site.

The timetable at the present is for states to submit their proposals to the federal Department of Energy on Sept. 2. In January of 1988, five states will be chosen as finalists. The final site selection is to be announced in January, 1989.

During the Special Session, the Legislature also appropriated surplus funds from the budget year which ended June 30. These appropriations included:

- $5 million to the state's junior colleges.
- $6 million to the state's public universities for instructional and research equipment.
- $10 million to the state's universities for their libraries.
- $6 million for the repair and renovation of state-owned buildings.
- $500,000 for the State Department of Education's Adult Literacy Program.
- $1 million to the Department of Economic Development for an image-building campaign for the state.
- $1.565 million to promote the Superconducting Super Collider bid for the state.

JACKSON—A multi-million dollar package designed to reinforce Mississippi's bid for a massive federal research project, the Superconducting Super Collider (SSC), has won overwhelming approval by the Mississippi Legislature in a dramatic show of commitment and unity.

The far-reaching legislation was an integral part of the proposal that was to be submitted in Washington this week to the Department of Energy, the agency in charge of selecting a site for the SSC.

The SSC Act was approved by the House of Representatives and Senate during the special session that ended last weekend. There were no dissenting votes. Mississippi is among about 30 states competing for the Super Collider.

A four-county area in Northeast Mississippi, including parts of Clay, Lowndes, Oktibbeha and Noxubee counties, has been recommended as the optimum location for the gigantic project, largely because the Selma Chalk formation in the area is considered ideal for the facility.

The entire state will share in the economic bonanza if Mississippi is chosen as host state.

Upon completion in about seven years, the SSC will be the most advanced proton accelerator in existence and could make the host state the scientific center in the world.

In essence, the project involves construction of a 53-mile underground loop in which atomic particles will be accelerated to near the speed of light, using 10,000 superconducting magnets to guide the particle beams. The colliding particles will be used for research into the basic composition of matter.

The Super Collider will represent an investment of $4.4 billion to $6 billion, generating thousands of new jobs and literally millions of dollars in revenue. Analysts estimated the facility would mean more than 4,700 jobs during construction and about 3,000 permanent positions upon completion. And this does not include thousands of additional jobs in support services and business related to the SSC.

The measure provides for establishment of a Superconducting Super Collider Authority in the Governor's office to act on behalf of the state in submitting a siting proposal for the project. The measure authorizes the issuance of up to $500 million in bonds for defraying costs involved in the project—but the bonds could only be issued in the event Mississippi is designated as the host state.

Other major features of the lengthy bill provide a procedure for land acquisition if the SSC is built in Mississippi; authorize the SSC Authority to work with local governments in enhancement of public facilities in the project area such as school buildings, highways and recreation sites; establish a 15 percent set-aside to ensure that minority-owned small businesses share in the money spent for planning, construction and related purposes; and call for creation of an Institute of High Energy Physics and an Institute of Mathematics and Computer Sciences.

A special Super Collider fund would be created in the State Treasury to finance the SSC bonds. The legislation provides for $45 million annually to be paid into the special fund.

There are not tax increases whatever in the legislation, and most provisions such as the bond issue and establishment of the special fund will not take effect unless the Super Collider is located in Mississippi.

A final decision on the site is expected to be announced in January 1989. While the competition is keen, Mississippi's chances are considered good because of such factors as the geological formation at the proposed construction site, support of the neighboring states of Arkansas and Alabama, availability of an ample water supply from the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, and the influential positions held by Mississippi's congressional delegation.

Senator John Stennis is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, and Congressman Jamie Whitten chairs the House Appropriations Committee.

In addition to the SSC Act, lawmakers approved a package of appropriation bills during the special session to provide badly needed financial assistance to state universities, junior colleges, adult education programs and repair and renovation of state-owned buildings. The appropriations, totaling slightly over $30 million, will come primarily from money in the General Fund Reserve Fund.

The allocations include $10 million for library supplies at the universities; $6 million for instructional and research equipment at the universities; $5 million for library supplies and equipment at the junior colleges; $6 million for repair and renovation of buildings; $500,000 for adult literacy programs; and $1 million to the Board of Economic Development for a national campaign promoting Mississippi business and recreational opportunities.

An allocation of $1 million was approved for the Super Collider Authority, and an additional $565,000 was authorized for the Institute of Technology Development, a private nonprofit agency, to help prepare the state's bid for the SSC.

United States Senator

Thad Cochran

SOIL CONSERVATION RESERVE
Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) is sponsoring legislation to expand the Conservation Reserve Program authorized under the 1985 farm bill.

"Our bill will help control erosion, protect water quality, provide additional incentives for reforestation, and increase farm income," Senator Cochran told a group of Northeast Mississippi soil conservation commissioners meeting here Thursday.

The senator, a ranking member of the Senate Agriculture and Appropriations committees, told the group that nearly 20 million acres of highly erodible cropland has been accepted into the Conservation Reserve since the 1985 program was enacted.

Under the provisions of the law, farmers contract to retire erodible land for 10 years. In return, USDA makes annual payments to participating farmers and pays half the cost of establishing grass or trees on the land.

The bill being sponsored by Senator Cochran has six major goals:

- 1) Accelerated enrollment in the CRP to at least 25 million acres by the end of the 1988 crop year;
- 2) Authorize expansion of the reserve to 65 million acres by the end of the 1990 crop year;
- 3) Provide farmers more incentives and options for enrolling land in the reserve;

4) Mandate the Secretary of Agriculture to utilize the CRP as an option for addressing serious regional water quality or supply problems, at least on a pilot program basis;

5) Mandate the USDA secretary to provide additional incentives encouraging tree-planting under the CRP to meet requirements of the 1985 farm bill, and;

6) Continue Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) funding for CRP through FY 1990.

Extra speed limit enforcement planned by Highway Patrol

JACKSON—Motorists who rely on radar detectors or some other innovative means to get away with exceeding the speed limit may be in for a shock.

When the Labor Day observance begins Friday, the Mississippi Highway Patrol will implement new enforcement practices that make drivers who break speed laws more easily detected.

Both measures are designed to observe speeders without the enforcement officer's presence being immediately obvious to the violator.

Troopers will use nonradar equipment attached to speed monitoring cables buried in the surface of the highway, and surveillance aircraft to identify speeding vehicles through the time-distance principle of detection.

Identifying speeding vehicles from aircraft involves clocking the number of seconds it takes a vehicle to travel between measured lines on the highway.

There are 43 sites across Mississippi where troopers can monitor speeds from the buried cables and more than 40 aircraft where detection can be made from aircraft.

"Both the newly devised enforcement plans have the cooperation and support of the Mississippi State Highway Department," said James L. Roberts Jr., commissioner of public safety.

"We will be using the Highway Department's speed monitoring equipment that does not release a signal to activate radar detectors. Additionally, they have painted special lines and airplane silhouettes on state highways which will allow our air surveillance troopers to use stop watches in aircraft to determine a driver's speed."

Information on speeders will be broadcast to ground enforcement units who will cite the speeding drivers.

"Between the motorists that use radar detectors, commonly referred to as 'fuzz busters,' and the others who broadcast the location of our troopers via citizen band radios, it has been a real problem for us to effectively cite habitual and professional speeders," Roberts said.

"The professional speeder is one who is equipped to know the trooper's whereabouts, whether by citizen band radio or fuzz buster, and who totally disregards the posted speed limits. Professional speeders greatly influence the speeds other motorists drive and our new methods of enforcement will give us the edge on these types of violators."

"We are grateful to Highway Department officials for their cooperation and support they have shown in working with us on these projects," Roberts said.

The most recent figures released by Highway Department officials indicate that 57.7 percent of the motorists are not complying with the posted speed.

"If the noncompliance rate is not reduced to below 50 percent of vehicles exceeding 55 miles per hour during the current quarter ending Sept. 30, 1987, Mississippi could be in jeopardy of losing a percentage of valuable highway construction funds," Col. D.D. Cvitanovich, Highway Patrol chief, said.

"We are concerned that the spillover effect of the 65 mile per hour speed, that is legal on only 611 miles of rural portions of interstates 10, 20, 55 and 59 will be felt in those areas where the speed was not increased."

"Motorists are reminded that 55 is still the maximum speed limit on all Mississippi roads except those portions of rural interstate posted at 65," Cvitanovich said.

"We will be patrolling the highways and be more visible, working the traffic for hazardous violations. Roadblocks will be used to spot check for drunk drivers," he added.

Ten people died in nine separate accidents during the Labor Day holiday period in 1986. Two of the deaths were pedestrians and the other eight people who died were not wearing seat belts.

Troopers arrested 187 people on driving under the influence (DUI) of drugs or alcohol charges during last year's holiday period.

"In addition to the special monitoring devices and air surveillance, each of the nine Highway Patrol districts will have stepped up manpower through federally sponsored 'call back' speed enforcement details," Lt. Col. Don O'Cain, assistant chief of the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, said.

"The salaries of these officers, as well as the fuel for the aircraft that will be flown during the Labor Day period, is being paid by funds secured through the Governor's Highway-Safety Program."

"We will have at least 18 details working to augment the regular trooper shifts. This will result in approximately 864 additional manhours being worked during the 78-hour holiday period," he said.

"There are three special hazards that accompany holiday travel: busier highways, longer hours on the road and trips on unfamiliar roads."

"It is the final major holiday of the summer season and many young people will be traveling on state and federal highways to colleges and universities throughout the state," O'Cain said.

"We are asking the driving public in Mississippi to join us in our efforts to have a safe holiday observance."

"Wear seat belts, watch out for fellow motorists, be courteous and obey all laws, is our message to highway users," he added.

The three-day Labor Day holiday period begins Friday, Sept. 4 at 6 p.m. and ends Monday Sept. 7 at midnight.

MPC reports rates remain stable

The State Public Service Commission has approved a second quarter performance report filed by Mississippi Power Company that shows electric rates will remain unchanged under the Performance Evaluation Plan instituted last year.

Under the rate-setting plan, the Gulfport-based utility's financial and customer service record for the previous 12 months is reviewed each quarter and, based on that review, rates can go up, down or remain unchanged.

"This is the sixth quarterly evaluation we have filed since the plan went into effect," Ed Blakeslee, MPC's vice president of Marketing said. "Five of those reports have resulted in no increase in rates and one resulted in a two percent increase which was later offset by a reduction in customer fuel charges. We think this is good news for our customers, especially when you consider that today they are paying almost six percent less for electricity than they did in 1983."

Blakeslee said this was the fourth quarter in a row with no change in rates and he noted that tighter budget controls and good employee performance have kept rates stable under the Performance Evaluation Plan.

"We continue to have some of the lowest rates in the country and we will continue to work at maintaining above average performance scores for our customers."

CATTLE PRICES HOLDING
Cattlemen who have hung in there through recent bad times are now making profits to take up some of the slack, but cannot expect the current price situation to continue much longer.

This was the word passed on to producers in a Chicago meeting held by the American Farm Bureau Federation recently which featured short-range predictions by several livestock marketing specialists.

The specialists pointed out that markets for cattle on feed and hogs should remain profitable through the fourth quarter of this year and into 1988, but feeders are expected to find margins somewhat narrower than they have enjoyed for the past several months.

Mid-year 1987 cattle inventories indicate that the liquidation that has marked the cattle business for the last five years finally is coming to a halt, and by next year cattle numbers are expected to be back on the increase.

Currently the U.S. has fewer cattle since 1973 when recordkeeping began. Beef cow numbers are slightly above a year ago, but down three percent from 1985. Beef replacement heifer numbers are unchanged from a year ago while heifers available for feedlots are down seven percent.

Following an extensive dairy herd liquidation program, dairy cow numbers are at a new low, down five percent.

For most of this year many Mississippi cattlemen have been enjoying profitable times again, but as the buildup of cattle numbers continues it can be expected that weaker prices will follow in the ongoing cycle.

Cattlemen were told that tax laws are an important factor in determining degrees of investment in live cattle and that they should learn what the new tax law provides in order to plan their cattle operations.

Concerning hogs it was pointed out that pork supplies could be up by four to six percent in the fourth quarter compared to a year ago, and if this happens prices could fall into the low $50 range per hundredweight for the third quarter now underway, and into the mid-$40 range later this year.

A major concern for cattlemen is the fact that beef demand at the retail stores has decreased significantly since the late 1970's and work needs to be done to bolster beef sales by research and promotion aimed at the consuming public that is looking for the light and low-fat products that are convenient and easy to use.

Meanwhile on the grain side, a larger than expected corn crop and record soybeans yields in the U.S. this year will tend to hold grain prices down despite increased feed and export demands for both.

Economists now say they do not expect corn prices to rise above $1.60 per bushel nor soybean prices to go over $4.80 per bushel with one half of a billion bushels in storage by the end of this crop year.

The U.S. has developed a growing supply of soybean oil since more beans have been crushed for feed, creating an oil surplus.

EYEING A HURRICANE—SrA. Joann Yurconic, 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron dropsonde operator, checks out the weather data collection device (dropsonde) which is dropped by aircrws into storm systems. (U.S. Air Force photograph)

Hurricane hunters, storm trackers still vital to accurate forecasting

By First Lt.
Mark E. Israelitt
53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron

Keesler Air Force Base
In recent years, technology has entered the field of weather forecasting. A major innovation is the use of satellites to identify the formation, development and movement of weather systems.

However, when it comes to violent weather systems—hurricanes, for example—satellites alone cannot presently provide all the needed data.

That's why the National Hurricane Center continues to rely on Air Force units such as Keesler's 53rd and 815th Weather Reconnaissance Squadrons for precise information on tropical weather disturbances from June 1-Nov. 30, the hurricane season.

The 53rd and the 815th WRS get this information the hard way, by flying directly into tropical weather disturbances in WC-30 aircraft. These units have flown 23 such missions during the first three months of the 1987 hurricane season.

On these missions, an aeronautical weather reconnaissance officer studies the development of tropical disturbances up close. From these observations and weather instruments on board the WC-30's, critical data is collected for the National Hurricane Center. The information is used to provide the most accurate forecast possible.

The sequence of events leading to 53rd and 815th WRS hurricane missions is as follows:

When a tropical disturbance appears on satellite photos, a WC-30 is sent to investigate the type of wind circulation in the disturbance. With low pressure systems just beginning to develop, forecasters are interested primarily in the wind circulation just above sea-level.

Depending upon the winds and visibility, the mission is flown between 500-1,500 feet above the water. If organized wind circulation is established, and the winds do not exceed 38 mph, the system is classified as a tropical depression.

If a system continues to develop, with wind speeds exceeding 38 mph, it's classified as a tropical storm. At this point, organized circulation is a fact.

If conditions are favorable for further development to hurricane status, the National Hurricane Center pays close attention to changes in such data as pressure, temperature, dew point and storm intensity. The formation of a circular shaped eye wall, and changes in the storm's speed and movement are also monitored.

Missions at the tropical storm stage of development are flown at approximately 10,000 feet.

When a system's winds reach 74 mph the storm is upgraded to a hurricane. At this point, the violent nature of the storm usually can be seen through the development of a solid eye wall surrounding feeder bands.

A weather reconnaissance mission now involves locating the hurricane's center, penetrating it and collecting information from that vantage point.

Locating the exact center of a well-developed system is easy—it's somewhere in the eye of the hurricane. Getting to the storm's center is the tough part for the weather reconnaissance aircrws. The only way to the center is through the turbulent mass of rain-heavy clouds surrounding it. It's a rough ride.

As the aircraft penetrates the eye wall, the weather officer collects weather information and directs the aircraft headings. Once the WC-30 breaks into the eye, the crew pinpoints the actual center of the storm—usually, where the pressure is the lowest, the temperature is highest and the winds and sea are very calm.

As in the earlier stages of a storm's development, the information gathered during a flight into the eye of a hurricane is passed on to the National Hurricane Center. In turn, the information is used to update forecasts and in the event a hurricane approaches land, to issue safety and evacuation warnings to residents in its path.

Once a weather system reaches hurricane status, 53rd and 815th WRS aircrws are likely to be sent back into the storm again and again. These flights are necessary to provide continuing, accurate and reliable information to the National Hurricane Center—information vital to the safety of residents of Atlantic Ocean and Gulf of Mexico coastal areas.

There were no fatalities on the Mississippi Gulf Coast when Hurricane Elena struck here on Labor Day 1985. In part, this can be attributed to the information gathered by the 53rd and 815th WRS aircrws.

Special Session on Super Collider produces financial benefits to education

By Ellen Ann Fentress
Mississippi Reporting Service
JACKSON—The Mississippi Legislature unfurled a $530 million welcome mat in a three-day special session last week in hopes of ushering the biggest federal research project in U.S. history into the state.

Legislators passed a package of proposals designed to lure the proposed Superconducting Super Collider project to locate in east Mississippi, a $4.4 billion facility that state officials say would mean a bonanza for the state in money and prestige.

About 30 states are vying to win the project, which Mississippi wants to be located in the area including Clay, Oktibbeha, Lowndes and Noxubee counties.

In a related gesture, legislators beefed up state spending for education and building repairs by $27.5 million, a move that Gov. Bill Allain said would impress federal officials on Mississippi's commitment to making the state a good home for a scientific research facility.

Lawmakers also authorized a higher than expected price tag to build a causeway to the location of proposed new Navy home port in Pascagoula, because bids came in $2.4 million higher than estimated originally.

Meanwhile, inside politics absorbed House members, too, as politicking continued in the race for a new House speaker coming with House Speaker Buddie Newman's retirement.

The Superconducting Super Collider is a project to study sub-atomic particles with the help of a 53-mile underground oval ring, where atomic particles could be smashed at the speed of light.

It would take seven years to construct, and employ 2,500 once operating. An expected $300 million annual budget is expected to generate $45 million a year for the state and another $8 million for nearby communities.

The state is depending on that extra economic boost to pay for public improvements that the state is offering to make should Mississippi become home to the facility.

Under the bill passed during the session, the Mississippi Superconducting Super Collider Authority would be authorized to spend $500 million to enhance the four-county region that hopes to become the collider's site.

The only debate centered on guaranteeing blacks a bigger slice of the financial pie. Nearly all black House members voted against the proposal on the first day of the session, but the House returned the next day and corrected the grievances of the black caucus, which then joined in giving the bill unanimous passage.

The final version of the bill calls for 15 percent of the $500 million to be spent with minority-owned businesses.

The authority also has the power to obtain private property needed for the collider.

The extra $27.5 million handed out during the session will go to libraries at the eight state universities ($10 million), university research equipment ($6 million), junior colleges ($4.5 million to libraries and $500,000 to adult literacy), state building repairs ($6 million) and adult literacy programs through the Department of Education ($500,000).

In the House, the two top contenders emerging from speaker's race politicking during the special session are Reps. Ed Perry of Oxford and Tim Ford of Tupelo. Ford is the candidate endorsed by a group of 75 House members who pushed through new House rules weakening the speaker's power in the first days of the 1987 session.

But Perry, who opposed the rules change out of loyalty to Newman, maintains that Ford has not sewn up the contest. Perry has said he would support the rules changes if he became speaker, although he opposed them originally out of loyalty to the speaker, under who he has served as Appropriations Committee chairman.

BaySide man charged

BY DENA BISNETTE

A BaySide Park man has been arrested on drug charges related to the alleged sale of two pounds of marijuana.

According to Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Glenn Strong, Larry Phillip Huffman, 32, of Rt. 7, Box 275A, Bay St. Louis, was arrested Tuesday at about 11:30 p.m. at the BaySide Park Clubhouse.

He is charged with possession of a controlled substance and sale of controlled substance and was jailed on $20,000 bond, the investigator added. Strong said the drug involved was two pounds of high-grade marijuana.

He said the arrest resulted from an ongoing investigation lasting about 10 days, during which Huffman was under surveillance.

In addition to the marijuana, authorities also seized a .22 revolver and $567 in cash.

Strong said the investigation is continuing and a second arrest is a possibility.

Assisting Strong were deputies Greg Lichtenstein, John Eddie Thornton, Kenneth Hurt and Matt Karl.

HOUSE VOTE

The only vote of the three-day session that produced a significant split was the House's first vote on the package of incentives to lure the Super Collider to locate in Mississippi.

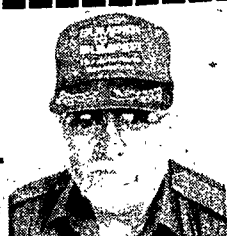

All black House members but one opposed the bill, which they said offered minority business to small a share of the economic boom the project is said to offer.

The House modified the bill the next day, when the legislation passed without opposition, as it did in the Senate. Phillips, yes; Woodfield yes; Simpson, yes; and Fredericks, no.

SENATE VOTE

The Super Collider package passed the Senate 50-0. Sen. Bill Harpole of Starkville, who owns land and mineral rights to land in the proposed site area for the facility, voted present.

Jews have given America great journalists, poets, musicians

Editor's note: This is the second in a series of articles presented by the Friendship Oak Chapter NS DAR through their publicist Joe Pilet. It was written as a tribute marking the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Federal Constitution and gives an account of the outstanding contributions made by the Jewish people toward the establishment of "A land of the free and home of the brave".

BY JOE PILET

There is a power called Hope. It breathed the breath of life in to 225 tons of cold steel and copper. The world knows the end product as the Statue of Liberty or Liberty Enlightening the World.

People of many lands have added strength and beauty to America, and probably none more significantly than the Jews.

They have freely given of their talents, skills, money, and intellect and they have poured out their hopes in sure and certain faith that in a free country there will be peace, progress, and an opportunity to develop their potential.

Daily life in America reflects the influence of the Jews. Several Jews sailed with Christopher Columbus on his first voyage.

One named Luis de Torres is said to be the first member of the expedition to set foot on American soil.

Jesus was a Jew. The Old Testament of the Bible was written by Jews. Eighteen Jewish men who served in the Revolutionary War are buried in the oldest Jewish cemetery in New York City.

Throughout the years Jewish emphasis has stressed charity as a duty of the citizenry.

Prominent givers of good gifts are the Jews in our midst. They have graven their beliefs on a tablet attached to the pedestal wall of the Statue of Liberty. "Give me your poor, your tired, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free..."

These familiar words well express the hopes of Jews in seeking a land with freedom to develop—with freedom from fear and persecution.

The poignant composition from which these words are quoted was written by Emma Lazarus of New York, socially prominent and from a wealthy Jewish family.

Emma Lazarus wrote with passion about the plight of fellow Jews, exiles, victims of the Russian pogroms.

The poem was written at the request of her friends who were attempting to raise funds for the erection of the Liberty Statue. Her words expressed the hopes of thousands.

And what a champion for the cause of liberty America had in the person of Joseph Pulitzer, a Hungarian Jew who entered the United States in 1864 and settled in St. Louis to become prominent in both politics and newspaper publications.

Realizing the urgent need of funds to construct a pedestal for the Bartholdi statue, Pulitzer conducted an on-going campaign through his newspaper "The World" with two goals in mind: To raise $100,000 for the erection of a pedestal for Lady Liberty and to involve the general public in making the contribution.

His persistence was eloquent! A vividly expressed testimonial to the power of hopes.

One hundred and twenty thousand persons donated $102,000 for the erection of the pedestal! Pulitzer died in 1911. He left two million dollars to establish a graduate school of journalism at Columbia University.

He left $500,000 to New York Philharmonic Society and another $500,000 to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Pulitzer prizes given each year for achievements of distinction in journalism, literature, music and the arts inspires hopes for many.

Correction, please. Pulitzer did not die in 1911, he lives on through the hopes and accomplishments of those he has inspired.

Did you ever hear of a Jew named Israel Baline? Doesn't sound familiar? It happens to be the name given by Irvine Berlin's parents to their son when he was born in Russia on May 11, 1888.

With his family he moved to New York when he was four years old. Berlin's hopes were realized. The power of his personality coupled with his extraordinary talents brought him to the front as a master of musicals and of popular songs.

President Dwight Eisenhower authorized a gold medal in recognition of his composition "God Bless America" and other popular songs. President Harry S. Truman honored him as an outstanding composer of American music.

Irvine Berlin had no formal musical training. His service in the army gave him the stimuli to write the successful "This is the Army, Mr. Jones." He gave the $10 million profit from this production to the Army Emergency Relief Fund.

Berlin wrote both words and music for almost 900 songs! Every year "I'm Dreaming of A White Christmas" puts America in a holiday mood.

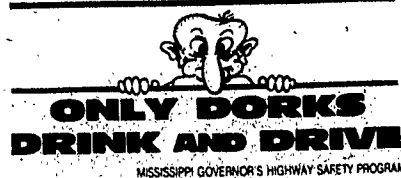

God Bless America. God Bless Irvine Berlin and Israel Baline and others of the Jewish nation who have entered our American "melting pot" and added immeasurably to the culture of our land and my land.

James H. (Jim)

Supervisor
District One
Nov. 3, 1987

The people of Hancock County have not only spoken up, but actually shouted out by using that special gift bestowed upon all Americans, their right to vote. Three incumbent supervisors have been unseated and a fourth retained his seat by a margin of only one vote.

I recently was invited by the Mississippi Home Builders Association to Political Night at our famous Mississippi Coast Coliseum and Convention Center. The guest speaker was U.S. Congressman Trent Lott. I had the opportunity to speak to Congressman Lott, and also news reporters from our local TV station (Channel 13), and numerous other Coast political candidates. Through these conversations I could sense that the eyes of the entire Gulf Coast are focused upon Hancock County.

The people of Hancock County indicate they are crying out for a change, and I am here to tell you, the voters of District One, that you still have a chance to let your precious vote work for you again by voting for me, Jim Thornton, who in return, will work for you.

Please weigh my qualifications with that of my opponent and come out and vote in the Nov. 3 General Election.

Labor Day, in the days when I was growing up, signaled the end of summer fun on the Gulf Coast, for that's when summer ended for those of us who had to return to New Orleans and settle down to the schoolroom once more - and how we envied our friends who were so fortunate as to live the year round along the Sound and the Bay!

They at least could take a break from classroom routine with sorties to the beaches and such!

Of course, today's youngsters return to the classroom before Labor Day - but the long holiday weekend is still theirs, and ours, to enjoy. So - what are you cooking up for that "Farewell to Summertime" feast outdoors - or indoors?

Perhaps you're planning to grill steak or ribs, or hamburgers or chicken - or whatever. But, what more appropriate way to say farewell to summer fun along the Gulf Coast than a feast from the waters?

Fish, shrimp, crabs are all excellent choices for the outdoor grill or barbecue pit or smoker - just remember the cardinal rule of seafood cookery - and don't overcook it - whatever it is!

Fish, well seasoned and enclosed in a heavy foil overcoat, makes a delicious meal from the grill. Foil roasted corn and onions and potatoes are tasty "go-alongs."

But for a real feast, why not choose our Coast crabs, hard or soft shell according to your preference - and their availability? I like to marinate cleaned hard shell crab bodies in sauce, then put them on the grill and brush with the sauce, and let them cook to their tasty best.

First, of course, scald the crabs quickly in boiling water (just as if you were getting ready to boil them). Next clean, halves and marinate them awhile before you cook them.

Some like the usual tomato-based or other barbecue sauce for the marinade, but I prefer for this a marinade of minced onion, garlic, lemon juice, lemon peel, oil and white wine, mixed to one's taste, along with generous splashes of Tabasco and Worcestershire sauce, as this lets the crab goodness and flavor come through more to my liking.

But what I really, really savor - when I can get my greedy hands on enough soft shell crabs or have hoarded enough in the freezer, is:

SOFT SHELL CRABS CELESTIAL

12 dressed soft shell crabs, preferably fresh, but frozen will do
3/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
1 cup oil
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
Generous dash of Tabasco sauce
Lemon wedges

Clean, wash and dry the crabs and place in a well greased, hinged wire grill. Mix up all the seasonings except the lemon wedges (they're for garnishing) and baste the crabs with this.

Cook about four or five inches from moderately hot coals for just several short minutes. Turn and cook for a few minutes more, or until lightly browned. Serve with lemon wedges and additional parsley

During the twenty-six week period, sales rose 20.5 percent to $120,759,000 from $100,233,000 in the prior year. Earnings rose to $3,268,000, up 17.0 percent from $2,792,000 in the prior year. Earning per share rose to $.42 from $.41.

For the twelve week second quarter sales rose 24.6 percent to $57,132,000 from $45,847,000 while earnings rose to $1,333,000 up 13.6 percent from $1,173,000 in the prior year.

The company's Board of Directors declared a dividend of $.03 per share payable September 18, 1987, to shareholders on record on September 9, 1987.

During the Quarter five additional drug stores were opened, these being located in Madison and Tuscaloosa, Alabama; Albany and Conway, Georgia and Tullahoma, Tennessee. The company anticipates opening a minimum of thirteen additional stores during the second half of the fiscal year.

Weekly State Crop Report

Covering week of Aug. 22-28

HAY MAKING AFFECTED BY CHANGING WEATHER.
Some farmers are making hay while others are still trying to grow grasses for hay because of variable weather across Mississippi this summer.

Rain in south Mississippi provided grasses with enough moisture for a good hay crop and farmers have enough time to make more hay before they begin planting winter grazing crops, said Dr. Lamar Kim-brough, an agronomist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

The drought in north Mississippi has kept grasses from growing and farmers will try to grow grasses now in hopes of making late hay.

"We've got a lot of dry pockets throughout north Mississippi," Kimbrough said. "We'll probably have some places in the area which will have a shortage of hay because our grasses haven't grown."

The effort to grow grasses will delay some north Mississippi farmers from preparing their pastures for winter grazing. Farmers in the southern half of the state will be on schedule with their winter pasture planting.

Mississippi has 4.5 million acres in pastureland, and about 350,000 of those acres will be planted for winter grazing. Land preparations for winter grazing usually begin the first week in September and continue through October.

Kimbrough said most winter pastures are ready to graze by November.

In other related agricultural news, dry weather in some northern counties is adversely affecting soybean plants.

"Soybeans that are flowering and putting on small pods are beginning to shed due to dry weather," said Jimmy Luther, Itawamba County agent.

Lipton Regatta slated Saturday through Monday

BWYC to defend championship on home waters

Bay-Waveland Yacht Club will defend its title as Champions of the Gulf Yachting Association for the Sir Thomas J. Lipton Cup.

The challenge for the title and the cup has been made by more than 20 yacht clubs from throughout the GYA and has been accepted by BWYC.

Labor Day Weekend will be the time, Flying Scots will be the boat, and four-race series will be the format, and the Bay of Saint Louis will be the place.

The team designated to defend the prestigious championship for BWYC are veteran helmsmen Marc Eagan, Randy Santa Cruz, Dennis Stieffel and Peter Merrifield, each of whom have managed to accumulate impressive sets of sailing credentials.

According to BWYC Team Captain Mac Hadden, "The team feels very confident about a 1987 victory to retain the title, although, strong and intense competition is anticipated from Southern, Gulfport, Pensacola, Ponchartrain, New Orleans and Pass Christian Yacht Clubs."

"It will be difficult for any team in the GYA to survive the talent, depth and strength of the powerful BWYC team. The BWYC team realistically has the capability to win every race of the four race series with a wide margin in each race. This would be only one point better than the impressive BWYC victory of 1986 on Lake Ponchartrain of 1-2-1-1," he added.

A 1987 BWYC victory will translate to five BWYC victories in the last six years, six victories in the last eight years, 11 victories in the last 17 years and 12 overall victories in the 68 years of Lipton Cup competition.

At this time only Southern Yacht Club has more outright overall victories than Bay-Waveland Yacht Club with 14 wins and three ties. Pensacola Yacht Club, however, ranks second on an overall basis with 11 wins and two ties.

This is a highly-coveted championship, rich in history and tradition and no matter who wins, it will be a fine event. The entire Gulf Yachting Association is looking forward to the competition and the hospitality, according to General Regatta Chairman Basil Kennedy.

The man who provided the Sir Thomas J. Lipton Cup was born in Glasgow in 1850 and was best known for the tea that bears his name and for his indomitable spirit in attempting to win the "America's Cup" in his famous "Shamrock."

Youth Soccer registration scheduled

Bay Area Youth Soccer will begin registration for the 1987-1988 season Friday at North Bay Elementary School Cafeteria and St. Clare School between 7 and 9 p.m.

Registration will also be held at Bay Catholic School on Sept. 9 from 7 to 9 p.m.

Late registration will be Saturday, Sept. 12 from 8 a.m. to noon at the Waveland Little League field.

The registration fee is $25 which includes cost of the uniform, state and district soccer fees, a sports patch for playing in the 1987-1988 season, and referee fees.

All youth ages 5-18 are invited to participate. Registration fees cover both the fall and spring season.

By BAYS' rules, all team members get to play at least 50 percent of each game, regardless of skill.

Both boys and girls are encouraged to come and register for America's fastest growing sport.

Parents interested in volunteering their time and/or services to the league or just to find out more about the programs and benefits associated with our child's membership with BAYS may do so during the registration session.

Some of the things you may not know about the man perhaps deserve being mentioned since this regatta bears his name.

As a boy, he was a cabin boy in the merchant fleet, worked in a New England grocery store, drove a mule-drawn streetcar in New Orleans, traveled for a portrait firm, labored on tobacco plantations in South Carolina and Virginia and, while still in his teens, returned to Scotland to open his own grocery store.

He was an innovator in publicity stunts for advertising, once having a parade of pigs dressed in kilts to advertise Scottish bacon and occasionally hiding sovereigns in his cheese and tea bags to spur sales. This flair for merchandising led him to be a millionaire by the age of 21.

Yachts were his passion and he built and owned several; the most famous, of course were the five "Shamrocks" he built to challenge for the America's Cup. He made unsuccessful attempts in 1899-1902, 1902-1920 and 1930, with the "Shamrock IV" coming the closest to winning when it competed with Cornelius Vanderbilt's "Resolute" in 1920.

Though Sir Thomas never emerged victorious in the America's Cup challenge, he gained the admiration and respect on both sides of the Atlantic for the sportsmanship he demonstrated in his losing efforts.

This was best demonstrated by the fact that, following the 1930 event, a Lipton Loving Cup Fund was established and in 1930 Will Rogers presented an 18-carat gold cup to Sir Thomas on behalf of the American people for this good sportsmanship...the same year the Royal Yacht Club of England conferred membership on Lipton in recognition of what he had done for yachting in his various America's Cup challenges.

THE HISTORY

The Southern Gulf Coast Yachting Association, forerunner of the Gulf Yachting Association, was organized in April 1901 with five charter members - Bay-Waveland, Biloxi, Pass Christian, Mobile and Southern of New Orleans.

Later in the year Pascagoula joined and the first Flag Officers were Albert Baldwin of Southern, president; and the commodores of the other clubs, E. J. Bowers, BWYC; T. P. Dullon, BYC; J. H. Menge Jr., PCYC; Walter Gautier, PYC; and J. C. Bush, MYC as vice presidents.

This association was active until World War I, however, it was reorganized in 1920 as the Gulf Yachting Association when Commodore J. H. Cross of the Pensacola Yacht Club served as first president of the GYA.

Two events preceded the reviving of the GYA that undoubtedly had a significant bearing upon it.

First, Rathborne DeBuis, an architect and sailboat racing enthusiast, noting the decline in sail racing, designed a fleet of gaff rigged sloops to be owned by the yacht clubs and named it the "Fish Class" representing the fish located in central Gulf, i.e., tarpon, mullet, marlin, etc., and such names were placed on the stern of the sloops. As these club-owned fleets grew, the names were replaced by numerals on the sails together with the emblem of a fish. At one time, there were over 100 Fish Class sloops owned by the member clubs of the GYA.

The same year, 1919, Sir Thomas Lipton, a one-time resident and frequent visitor to New Orleans, to further the sport of yachting, had a cup made in England and presented it to the Southern YC to be known as the Sir Thomas Lipton Challenge Trophy.

The SYC placed the Lipton Cup in competition to be sailed for in club-owned Fish Class sloops, with the winning club to hold the perpetual trophy for one year and automatically becoming host and defending champion for the following year.

Pensacola successfully challenged Southern in the first Lipton Cup Series in 1920 and the annual Labor Day weekend Lipton Cup Series began.

Under GYA rules, the defending champion must, each July, issue an "intent to defend" the Cup and accept "challenges" through a specified date in August from the other GYA member clubs. If, however, the defending champion elects not to defend, then the club finishing second in the most recent series becomes the host and defends.

Very few changes have been made in that format except following Biloxi's remarkable four successive wins in the mid 50's, the rules were changed so that no club may host the Series for more than two consecutive years, and no skipper may participate in but one race each Series.

After 50 years of competition for the Lipton Cup in the Fish Class sloops, the Cup was retired in 1969 when the Flying Scot Class replaced the Fish boats. In place of the Lipton Cup, a half model replica was made carrying the identical measurements and designs and placed on a plaque with all previous winners' names engraved upon it. This new cup is awarded to the winning club and held by them for the ensuing year.

Boat show among water weekend highlights in Bay St. Louis Bay Cove Marina in Bay St. Louis is sponsoring an 'In-Water Boat Show' Labor Day weekend.

Charles Lambert, marina owner, feels the boat show will also help to acquaint the nautical community with their location and facilities.

Dealers and other participants are expected to show and sell their latest products, Lambert said.

Labor Day is the end of the summer season, but not for boaters on the Gulf Coast - which has several more months of fine boating weather.

The boat show expects to host some 1,500 to 2,000 spectators as well as dealers and exhibitors from the entire mid-Gulf area.

The Calypso Band Enchore will play for the entire show.

"Pass" night will kick off the show at 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 4, for the sneak preview and exhibitors' party.

A crafts exhibit is planned as well as a special concession area in an air conditioned facility, featuring traditional boat show food.

A water-taxi will accommodate boat show spectators to and from the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club and the Diamondhead Yacht Club.

The Hancock County Dive Rescue Squad will be on location during the entire show.

Bay Cove has recently completed new launching facilities plus dry dock storage areas. Plans are in the final stages of completion for 100 additional deep draft slips. Scheduling for the construction of marine loft apartments has been tentatively set for early Spring.

Coast Raiders to open season in Baton Rouge

The Coast Episcopal Raiders will field an exciting brand of football for the coming season. The team has been working hard for its road opener in Baton Rouge against a pass-oriented Calvary Heights squad on Saturday, Sept. 5 at 5 p.m.

The Raiders are smaller in size this year but will be much faster overall. The backfield will feature Sterling Thibodeaux at tailback, Johnny Mount at fullback, and Rea Montjoy at halfback. They will be backed up by Walter Rode, Kevin Albrecht, and Scott Covode.

Chris Riggs has rounded into a solid leader at quarterback with Billy Guice capable to come in at any time to run the team. Riggs and Guice will give the Raiders two quick, elusive quarterbacks, with the capability to run, pass, or pitch.

Either quarterback can hit the deep pass route and coupled with their quickness, will give opposing linemen fits.

Both boys have the capability to think and react well under pressure, said Raider Coach Terry Mahan. This gives the team much more explosiveness than we had last year, concluded Mahan.

The offensive line is about 20 pounds lighter per man but again, quickness and strength should make the team much more solid up the middle and on the corners.

The offensive line is bolstered in the middle by Jamie Ladner at center, Mike Kergosien and Jason Evans at guards. They will be backed up by Scott Hourin, Mike Burkett, David Willis, and Paul Westervelt.

Playing end for the Raiders will be Todd Purcell, Chip Grant, and Justin Taylor.

All three are strong and have good hands and speed making them able to take the short pass across the middle and go deep. Jesse Nicholson, Mark Catron, and Haley Odum are new additions to the club this year and will give the team much needed depth at ends and in the defensive secondary.

The Raider defensive unit should be able to shut down the sweep and deep pass routes much better than last year. Quickness and strength in the front four should give us the capability to put much more pressure on the quarterback said Coach Mahan. This will provide more opportunities for the fumble and interception in the secondary.

Mahan said the key this year will be our line play. If we get any kind of blocking up front, our backfield will be hard to handle. We don't have only one or two guys we can go to - we have 5 or 6 people that we can depend on to catch and run with the ball.

SPORTS FROM THE PRESSBOX

by Jim Fuller

The Portland Trailblazers are unhappy with their trade that sent former All-Star guard Jim Paxson to the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Boxing is an interesting sport, one where the end of a career can be only one fight away. A few months ago, Marvelous Marvin Hagler was on top of the boxing world, regarded by many as the best boxer in the world until he lost to Sugar Ray Leonard on April 6. Now, a court restraining order resulting from abuse to his wife, Bertha, has forced Hagler to move out of his Hanover, Massachusetts home. Hagler now lives in Bartlett, New Hampshire. His career and his marriage are on the rocks. What a difference a few months can make. ©1987, McNaught Synd.

Our road opener against Calvary Heights will be a good test. All the teams in Baton Rouge are extremely tough and well coached, said Mahan.

The Raider football program has been building quickly. Starting last year with 14 players and a solid recruiting year, the squad has built to 23 players, possibly giving them the opportunity to compete in 11 man football next year. With five home games, the local fans will have plenty of opportunity to come out and see an exciting brand of eight-man football.

Additionally, Coast Episcopal offers a wide variety of sports in which any or all students can participate. Volleyball, basketball, tennis, soccer, track and softball are all offered on the varsity level with sailing being offered this year on a trial basis. If you are interested in more information about Coast, contact Dr. Tom Bates or Coach Terry Mahan at 452-9442. Scholarships are available.

Rocks to open against Slidell's Pope John Paul

The St. Stanislaus Rockchaws will open their 1987-88 football season Friday when they entertain the Pope John Paul Jaguars at Rockchaw Stadium.

Kickoff is 7:30 p.m., and a capacity crowd is expected.

Head coach Ken Lyons, reports the Rocks have worked hard in practice, emphasizing speed and quickness.

The coaches have spent a lot of time teaching football fundamentals while reviewing their offensive and defensive game plans, he said.

"I have been extremely pleased with the recent progress shown by both our offensive and defensive teams. Our system now appears to be familiar to our athletes, and their newfound confidence and composure is quite evident," commented Lyons.

"At this point, this team seems to be up to par with any team that I've coached elsewhere. This has come about, however, due to the tremendous attitude that has been shown by the athletes and by the entire staff. Our administrators and fans have been very supportive and encouraging," he continued.

Pope John Paul has had the opportunity of participating in several scrimmages. Last Friday evening the Jaguars battled Northshore to a 6-6 deadlock in the Salmen Jamboree. In a jamboree, each game consists of two 12-minute halves.

Coach Lyons expects Pope John Paul to be a stern test for the rebuilding Rockchaws.

"They're a physical offensive and defensive team. They don't do anything fancy—they just run right at you and dare you to stop them," the coach stated.

Probable starters for the Rocks offensively are: Cedric Smith (QB), Jorge Ponjuan (FB), Gino Ascani (HB), YaSin Shabazz (FL), Freddie Wirstrom (SE) and Mike Vegas (TE).

Linemen include Charlie Beech and Justin Homes (G), Shane Sigsworth and Chuck Lavinghouse (T), and Steve Cuevas (C).

Defensively, the Rocks will use Noah Daspit, Shane Harris, Vincent Bradley, and Craig Sweeney as down linemen, with linebackers Jimmy Bradley, Jerry Packrell, John Leyser and Paul Montjoy.

The secondary includes YaSin Shabazz, Gary Ponthieux and Jimmy Relsch.

Bait scents make sense

Ever wonder why the bass suddenly turn off after you've wrestled and released a northern pike? Do you think the fish are getting finicky because they no longer want your lure? Well, the answer could be found in some of the odors left behind on your lure, line or hands!

"If you have gasoline on your hands, you can transfer that to bait," Linda England, Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member informs us.

"Cigarette smokers will have a particular odor on their hands; any kind of grease, oil or sunscreen will transfer to a lure. Also, when fish are caught they secrete a substance through their skin that's a fright substance, and if you handle the fish—put it in your live well or release it, whatever—you'll get this substance on your hands.

If you readjust your lure or cut and re-tie your line, you transfer this substance to your lure or line. So, if you don't cover that up, it will be a while before you get another bite."

It has long been established that bass have a keen sense of smell, which they use to locate prey, detect predators, select mates, and locate certain vegetation. A bass "smells" through two nostrils, located on each side of the snout. Water is forced through the anterior nostril openings, over sensory nerve endings, and out the posterior nostril.

A bass' sense of smell is part of a complicated nervous system, which includes its lateral line nerve system and its sense of hearing.

Combined, these senses allow the bass to pinpoint his prey's position and speed. Smell is an "early warning" system which works at long distances; taste is something the bass can only use at close range.

Bass also have body odors just as human beings do. This odor helps fish to identify their own species and predators. Further, body odor influences the social behavior of a school of fish. It is also an established fact that the older the bass, the more acute its sense of smell has become, as the olfactory folds within the olfactory organ increase as the bass grows in size.

This keen sense of smell can be utilized to the bass fisherman's advantage through the proper and effective use of bait scents. And the use of these attractants can mean a big difference in the number and size of bass you catch.

"I use Fish Formula II and Berkley Strike," states David Wharton, Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member. "I think they really make a difference in the number of fish that you catch. I think they will increase the number of bites that you will get during the day."

Many bass pros insist that the real value of bait scents lies in their motivational properties on inactive fish.

"I personally feel that they are most effective on inactive fish," elates England. "They're going to trigger that fish to take your lure. I also think—and maybe this is a thing that a lot of people don't think about—when a fish is very active his isn't very discriminating. A bait scent on your lure helps an active bass choose your particular offering rather than something else that may be nearby."

As a rule of thumb, bait scents should be applied every 15-20 minutes. Plastic lures should be sprayed more often. Some pros reapply the bait scent on every other cast; however, most agree that frequency is not at all necessary.

"When properly used, bait scents can act as a screen for repellent odors and also stimulate a bass to attack your lure instead of something else or nothing at all. Some popular brands include Fish Formula II and Berkley Strike, Lunker Lotion, Mister Twister Pot-it Potion, Bass-X-Citer, Gator Bait, Chena Bait, Whiskers Night Crawler Essence, Blakemore Worm Oil, Stanley Jig & Worm Juice and Execution Solution.

The service experts at Johnson Outboards and Evinrude Motors recommend that bass boaters and other high performance enthusiasts install a water pressure gauge on their boat. Outboards can lose water pressure if the motor is trimmed or raised too high, or if the water intake is covered with weeds or mud. Loss of water pressure can lead to overheating. A water pressure gauge gives an earlier warning of trouble than an engine temperature gauge.

It's The Law!

Liquid Legalities

If you're thirsty for facts about the quality of bottled water, it's nice to know this product is regulated by law.

Domestic bottled water is regulated by the federal government and by state and municipal agencies. The Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) classifies and regulates bottled water as a "food." The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) also has a definite impact on the quality standards that bottled water must meet.

Besides the government, the bottled water industry has its own watchdog—the International Bottled Water Association (IBWA). The IBWA has a plant inspection program currently administered by the National Sanitation Foundation. In addition, through manuals and training programs, a concentrated technical program to insure quality control is available to IBWA members.

Bottled water is the most closely monitored and tested of all drinking water. Dangerous contaminants and poor taste, reported with increasing frequency in tap water supplies throughout regions in the U.S. have caused many consumers to turn to bottled water.

For free booklets about bottled water, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: the International Bottled Water Association, 113 N. Henry St., Alexandria, VA 22314.

Troop 217 Scouts bunk aboard battleship

Troop-217 from Bay St. Louis recently spent the night aboard the battleship USS Alabama.

The 680 foot long Alabama was home for 2,500 navymen during World War II. But last week only the scouts were aboard during the night hours.

Decommissioned in 1947, the battleship now sits in the sands of Mobile Bay just outside Mobile, Alabama.

Troop leader Roy Mason said the scouts slept in the main deck berthing room and cooked in the Wardroom galley. "It probably wasn't quite like being out to sea, but it was still a real experience for our scouts," Mason added.

Scouts participating included Ray Jay Bingham, Steve Kenney, Matthew Carver, Teddy Belson, Ben McCollister, Aaron Fenrell, Neil Brimelow, Mathew Price, Duncan Schaffer, Jason Harris, Dwayne Bremer, and Albert Biehl.

Also Ed Belson and Amos Mayeaux accompanied the scouts as adult leaders.

While off board the scouts had free room of the ship. They toured the crew's galley, messing and berthing spaces, engine room, sick bay and radio room. They saw the captain's cabin, officer's quarters, and ship's bridge.

They also went into the 16 inch gun's turret, the 5 inch mounts and pretended to fire off rounds from the 20mm and 40mm anti aircraft batteries.

The 75-acre memorial park is also home for the submarine USS Drum, numerous military planes, tanks and guns, and a recently added Redstone Rocket.

The USS Alabama Battleship Memorial Park is open to the general public daily until sundown.

For more information on the USS Alabama Scout program call (205) 433-2703 or write Scout Coordinator c/o USS Alabama, P.O. Box 65, Mobile AL 36601.

USM dean named chair of Sea Grant Consortium

Hattiesburg—Dr. Robert T. Van Aller, dean of the University of Southern Mississippi Graduate School, has been elected chairman of the board of directors for the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium.

Van Aller was named to the position during a quarterly board meeting that coincided with the Mississippi Academy of Sciences March meeting in Jackson.

The board of directors establishes policy for the two-state marine research, education and advisory service agency and is comprised of directors representing each of the eight Mississippi and Alabama institutions that are members of the consortium.

United States Coast Guard Academy schedules nationwide competition

The United States Coast Guard Academy has announced that it is now accepting and processing applications for appointment as cadet, U.S. Coast Guard, Class of 1992.

Applications are being accepted for both men and women.

Appointments as Coast Guard cadets are tendered solely on the basis of an annual nationwide competition with no congressional appointments or geographical quotas.

Applications for appointment must be submitted to the Director of Admissions, U.S. Coast Guard Academy, prior to Dec. 15, 1987.

Candidates must arrange to participate in either the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or American College Testing Assessment (ACT) prior to or including the Dec. 12, 1987 administration for the ACT, and the Dec. 5, 1987 administration for the SAT.

The competition for appointment as cadet is based on the candidate's high school rank, performance on either the SAT or ACT, and leadership potential as demonstrated by participation in high school extracurricular activities, community affairs and/or part-time employment.

Most successful candidates rank in the top quarter of their high school class and demonstrate proficiency in both the mathematical and applied science fields.

To qualify for the competition, an applicant must be unmarried at the time of appointment, have no legal obligations resulting from a prior marriage, and must have reached the age of 17 but not 22 by July 1, 1988.

All applicants must be assured of high school graduation by June 30, 1988. Regulations stipulate that all applicants must have completed three units in English, and three in mathematics to include algebra and plane or coordinate geometry or their equivalents, and must fulfill basic physical requirements.

Coast Guard Cadets obtain an excellent undergraduate education at no personal expense.

In addition, they receive pay and allowances fully adequate to fulfill their ordinary living expenses.

The constantly updated academy curriculum leads to a bachelor of science degree with a strong academic emphasis on engineering and science.

The selected major studies, when combined with varied elective courses, establish a solid foundation for a challenging career.

Selected officers may pursue further postgraduate education and specialized training at many leading civilian and military graduate or professional schools, in such fields as aviation, business administration, electronics, engineering, law and oceanography.

The young Academy graduate can look forward to a varied, exciting

Blues Archive, media company enter agreement to enhance oral history program

A cooperative agreement between the University of Mississippi's Blues Archive and an international media production company promises to enhance oral history holdings at Ole Miss and provide income-earning musical exposure for some little-known blues musicians.

The Blues Archive, part of the Liniger, himself a widely-known and the edited radio shows for the use of blues scholars. Provisions University's John Davis Williams Library, and Media Productions International Inc. of Memphis have similar goals—documenting the roots of blues music as an indigenous Afro-American art-form.

Spearheading the project are Blues Archive staff member Walter blues harp player, and Craig Lee Koon, who heads the media production company in Memphis and is program manager of WSAO Radio in Senatobia.

From the University's standpoint, Liniger said a major goal of the archive is establishing an oral history program. The archive will receive copies of the unedited interviews have been made to share royalties with the archive and the artists-informants themselves.

From MPI's side, the first result is "The Original Downhome Blues Hour," a weekly radio show featuring interviews with area blues artists and their musical performances.

The show is hosted by Koon, with the dual purpose of spreading the blues sound to the radio audience and helping the musicians financially and through exposure of their music. MPI buys recording materials, pays the artist-informants and secures the copyrights.

Through MPI, Koon hopes to market the shows in France, Germany, Switzerland and other countries. There will be separate German and French versions of the show, reducing the interview time and increasing the music portion. Production of the show began some six months ago. There are now 26 one-hour shows in the program.

Minority counseling program begins second year

A peer counseling program for minority freshmen and transfer students begins its second year at Mississippi State University this fall.

Initiated by the university's Office of Minority Affairs last September, the program is designed to help minority students adjust to college life.

Peer counselors are usually junior and senior students from various academic areas and backgrounds representing a cross-section of organizations and disciplines at MSU. They are selected on the basis of grade-point average, campus involvement, leadership ability, and communication skills.

Each counselor is assigned three to six freshmen who become their "little brothers and sisters" during the students' first year. The counselors work to increase the retention of minority students at MSU by helping them make a successful transition into university life.

According to Dr. Ernestine Madison, assistant to the vice president for student affairs, peer counseling is invaluable to the students because it offers services unavailable elsewhere on campus.

"We saw a need for upperclassmen to give freshmen and transfer students direction," Madison said. "The help that they need is here, and students that have been around can either provide that help or refer them to someone who can."

In addition to an academic tutorial program, the counselors inform students about such things as social and service organizations they may wish to join, homecoming activities and Black Awareness Month programs.

Annual events include schedule-assistance parties during pre-registration, a financial aid forum and workshops on study skills and on how to interview for membership in campus organizations.

Madison said black student orientation is one of the most popular events of the year. Sponsored by the minority affairs office and the Council of Black Student Organizations, the next orientation will be held on campus Sept. 10-13 in conjunction with the MSU-University of Tennessee football game weekend.

Additional information on the counseling program can be obtained by telephoning Dr. Madison at (601) 325-2033, or by writing to Peer Counseling, Office of Minority Affairs, Drawer J, Mississippi State, Miss. 39762.

Score slates seminar on business problems

Does your business have financial problems?

That's what might be called a rhetorical question. The answer quite commonly is "yes"—especially with young businesses or ones facing growth pains, or facing business slow-downs. Sometimes a business gets that bleak bankruptcy look.

What do astute businesspeople do about money problems? Well, the first step is to double-check the ins and outs of good business financing practices. Get advice from financial connections, and from legal experts if your problems include possible bankruptcy.

These suggestions will be rolled into one on Wednesday Sept. 16, at a seminar co-sponsored by the Service Corps of Retired Executives, known as SCORE, and the U.S. Small Business Administration.

This consultation will guide a business owner through financial problems that could lead to insolvency and possible bankruptcy. Then, if bankruptcy is unavoidable, you will learn how to make it a solution instead of a problem.

You will also be advised on ways and means to deal with bankruptcies of your customers, and how to get the best possible recovery out of such circumstances.

Highly qualified, professional authorities will be your advisors at this SCORE seminar. They include the Honorable Edward R. Ganes of the United States Bankruptcy Court and former prosecuting attorney for the city of Gulfport; Robert Alan Byrd, a practicing attorney in Biloxi and author of "Mississippi Collection Law and Practices"; and Kenneth Leboldt Jr., a certified public accountant, associated with Leboldt & Company, Jackson. The moderator will be Sidney Wogan, SCORE workshop director and a retired Air Force judge advocate.

The SCORE seminar on September 16 will be held at the Best Western Biloxi Inn, 3910 West Beach, Biloxi, with registration at 8:30 a.m., followed by the program starting at 9 a.m., a luncheon and adjournment at 2 p.m. There's a modest fee, which includes attendance, all materials, publications, refreshments and lunch at the Biloxi Inn.

Complete information is available by visiting or calling Score at the U.S. Small Business Administration office, One Hancock Plaza, Suite 1001, Gulfport. The phone number is 863-4449. Ask for Dottie Overal.

Flu shots available at Health Department

"Shots are not just for kids," affirmed State Health Officer Dr. Alton B. Cobb. "Adults need immunizations, too."

County health departments statewide will have begun their annual immunization effort for influenza Sept. 1. This year, health officials also recommend pneumococcal vaccine. Recipients will pay $5 per shot to help cover the cost of the vaccine and its administration.

The Hancock County Health Department has scheduled flu shots to be given Mondays and Thursdays.

This year's influenza vaccine provides protection against the current prevalent strains of flu: A/Taiwan/1/86, A/Leningrad/360/86, and B/Ann Arbor/1/86. The nurse can give the pneumococcal vaccine at the same time.

"Influenza poses particular problems for the very people who are least able to cope with the disease, such as the elderly or those with chronic heart or lung diseases," the State Health Officer said.

"The influenza virus can cause major epidemics of respiratory disease, as we see nearly every winter, and it causes thousands of excess deaths nationwide among this population."

The Surgeon General reports that 10 thousand or more deaths have been associated with influenza epidemics in 17 of the years from 1957 to 1984.

More than 80 percent of the excess deaths attributed to influenza epidemics occur among persons 65 years of age or older. Attack rates during outbreaks in nursing homes are as high as 60 percent, with fatality rates of 30 percent or higher.

Pneumococcal infections, mainly pneumonia, are important causes of severe illness and death in the same groups.

About a half million cases of pneumococcal disease are estimated to occur annually in the United States.

The case rate increases with age, and the fatality rate in those 60 years old and older is 25 to 35 percent.

Pneumococcal vaccine is available year-round at county health departments.

"Safe and effective vaccines are available for both diseases," Dr. Cobb said. "This high risk group of people should get flu shots every year; individuals need pneumococcal vaccination only once to provide protection. Appropriately used, these vaccines could prevent many deaths each year."

"Mississippians reported 1,667 cases of influenza in the 1986 season, which generally runs from October through April. Death certificates listed influenza as cause of death for 22 elderly Mississippians last year; the disease killed 46 state residents in 1985.

Influenza is an acute disease of the respiratory tract spread by person-to-person contact through droplet infection. Symptoms include fever, chills, headache, muscle pain, tiredness, mild sore throat, and inflammation of the nasal passages; cough is often severe and long-lasting. Most patients recover on their own in about seven days.

Pneumococcal bacteria can cause pneumonia and blood infections. People who have chronic heart, lung, kidney, or immune system problems, and those over age 65 are at highest risk of dying from pneumococcal pneumonia.

Immunizations for these and other vaccine-preventable diseases are available from family physicians or the local county health department. Readers should call in advance to schedule an immunization appointment.

Hancock seniors invited to college program

CLINTON—Mississippi College has announced the fall schedule for Elderhostel, a week-long residential program of study for adults 60 years of age or older.

The Clinton college is one of six Mississippi schools participating in the international network of over 800 educational institutions.

The goal of Elderhostel is to provide new learning experiences and friendships. Each campus program features three short-term courses especially designed for Elderhostelers and includes some involvement in the life of a college campus.

Since campus dormitory accommodations previously allocated to Elderhostelers have been pre-empted by an increase in freshman registration at Mississippi College this fall, Elderhostelers will live in the Admiral Benbow Inn in downtown Jackson where they will be served breakfast and have a morning class before traveling by van to Mississippi College each day.

Afternoon classes will be held on campus, and lunch and supper will be in the college cafeteria. The cost will be $215 and includes food and lodging for residential participants. Program cost for commuters is $95 per week.

Three program weeks are scheduled at Mississippi College during the fall semester. Each week will include a field trip.

In honor of our Constitution's 200th birthday, "The Constitution as an Enduring Document" will be featured during the first week scheduled for Oct. 11-17, and will be taught by Dr. Richard Hurt, Associate Dean of the Mississippi College School of Law.

Sir Jack D. L. Holmes, Spanish expert who recently completed his tenure as scholar-in-resident at the Mississippi Department of Archives and History, will lead a study of "Early Mississippi: The Spanish Years 1779-1821," which will include a visit to early Spanish sites in Natchez.

Dr. Craig Turner, head of the English department, will teach a course in "American Humor: Tackling Your Funny Bone," which will include representative figures from Twain to Thurber and from Keaton to Cary Grant.

The second Elderhostel week, scheduled Nov. 1-7, will feature "The French Colonial Period in Mississippi: Saga of Misadventure, Dissension, and Misrule," taught by Dr. Walter Howell, a former college history professor.

A field trip to Natchez, via the Natchez Trace, will complement a study of "Eudora Welty and a Sense of Place" under the direction of Dr.

Lee Harding, assistant professor of English.

Mrs. Mary Catherine Gentry, assistant professor of Communication, will lead a study in "Non-Verbal Communication: What You Don't Say!" Elderhostelers will study the impact of such phenomena as kinesics (body movement), face and eye behavior, proxemics (distances), physical appearance, and environment on interpersonal communication.

"The Vicksburg Campaign: Turning Point of the Civil War" will feature Terry Winschel of the Vicksburg National Military Park during the week of Nov. 15-21. Participants will visit the park as well as the Old Courthouse Museum.

Dr. Billy Hicks, associate professor of history and political science, will lead the study of a course in "Southern Politics and Politicians," and Steve Cook, instructor in Art, will discuss "Nineteenth Century Art in the South."

A limited number of scholarships to cover costs above the $40 deposit is available to people who would not otherwise be able to attend Elderhostel.

Registration for residential participation may be made by contacting Elderhostel, 80 Boylston Street, Suite 400, Boston, Ma 02116, telephone (617) 426-8056.

Hancock County adults wishing to attend as commuters, or residential participants interested in scholarship information or applications should contact Carey Gaughf, (601) 925-3265, in the Office of Continuing Education at Mississippi College.

Greek Night 87 Tickets available

SEWING LINGERIE CHOOSE A PATTERN

Patterns are available for all types of lingerie from bras and panties, slips and petticoats, to feminine gowns and elegant robes. Lingerie patterns are sized in the same familiar size ranges as dress patterns.

CHOOSE A LINGERIE KNIT

Choose your lingerie fabric from a wide range suitable for lingerie. Tricot, a favorite for lingerie, is a single warp knit usually made from nylon, which gives it strength, resiliency and easy care qualities. Nylon tricot is available in many colors and prints and comes in several weights and types.

HEAVY WEIGHT TRICOT, 40 denier, is opaque which makes it suitable for slips, bras, panties, and pajamas.

MEDIUM AND LIGHT WEIGHT TRICOT allow some light to pass through.

SHEER WEIGHT TRICOT, 15 denier, is completely transparent and is usually used in combination with other lingerie fabrics or as a backing for lace.

CREPE TRICOT has a pebble textured surface which helps reduce clinging.

BRUSHED NYLON TRICOT has a soft, napped surface. This surface tends to cling, so it is not recommended for slips or panties, but is perfect for loungewear.

STABILIZED TRICOT resembles taffeta and should be handled like a woven fabric since it does not stretch.

Another knit, STRETCH LACE, comes in delicate patterns and is perfect for panties and body suits. Its sewing performance is similar to knits of comparable weight.

CHOOSE YOUR NOTIONS

NYLON LACE is the best choice for trimming since its fiber content matches that of your lingerie fabric.

LINGERIE ELASTIC has a finished, lacy edge on one side and is softer and more resilient than other elastics. Elastic with a napped back which is soft and more comfortable than ordinary elastic is also available. Elastic 1/4 inch wide is usually best for waistlines and 1/2 inch wide for leg edges.

BRA AND SLIP STRAPS, as well as lingerie elastic, can now be found color coordinated to match your lingerie fabric.

GETTING READY TO SEW

Lingerie fabrics are very strong, despite their light weight. Scissors must be sharp to cut tricot without chewing it. Bent shears make accurate cutting easier since they do not lift the fabric from the cutting surface as much as straight shears do.

Ball point pins which slip between the threads in lingerie fabric rather than piercing them are available. Sharp and fine pointed pins, though, are quite suitable. Ball point pins may be purchased locally.

Place pins within the seam allowance to avoid marring the fabric.

Work on a large, flat surface and don't allow the fabric to hang over the edges since it will stretch and slip.

To determine which side of your tricot is the right side, cut an edge crosswise and stretch it. The edge will always roll to the right side.

Tricot stretches most in the crosswise direction, so place your pattern pieces with the crosswise direction going around the body. Because of this stretch you can cut bindings in the crosswise direction rather than the bias.

Never use carbon paper. Always test your marking on a scrap of fabric to be sure it is removable. Cut notches out.

STITCHING—Lingerie can be successfully stitched on a conventional sewing machine using the method below. If you are fortunate enough to own a serger, construction is faster and details of stitching are slightly different. Consult owner's manual for details. Needles for sewing lingerie should have a ball point. Needles should be small, size No. 9 for sheer fabrics, but not larger than size No. 11 for the heaviest of tricot. Use size No. 9 needle for hand sewing.

THREAT—For sewing lingerie knits must "give" as the fabrics do. This helps to avoid seam breakage. Fine nylon or polyester threads are excellent since their fiber content is compatible with most lingerie fabric.

Use a regular stitch length of 12 stitches per inch or slightly shorter. Be sure there are no rough spots on your machine throat plate, feed dog or presser foot that could catch on sheer lingerie fabric.

Use a loose, balanced tension. Adjust the tension until the stitches look the same on both sides.

Lower the needle by hand for the first stitch. This helps prevent the fabric from being pulled down into the throat plate hole.

Use a straight stitch throat plate. It is usually easier to tie threads together at the end of a seam rather than to backstitch.

Never stitch over pins. Since lingerie fabric is light, a pin may pull the fabric up and cause the seam to be uneven. Instead, stitch up to a pin, remove it, then continue stitching the seam.

Incorporate "give" into seams in lingerie by holding fabric from front and back and stretching gently and evenly as you stitch.

Seams in knit lingerie fabrics should be double stitched. Stitch on the seam line with a straight stitch. If possible, zigzag the second row of stitching close to the first, within the seam allowance. If your machine has only straight stitch, make a second row of stitching 1/8 inch from the first within the seam allowance. Trim close to the stitching.

Many new machines have special stretch stitches perfect for lingerie. These include both straight and decorative stitches that automatically incorporate stretch into the seam.

APPLYING ELASTIC—Connect the ends of the elastic, by overlapping a 1/2 inch. Secure with a rectangle of stitches.

Divide the edge of the garment and the circle of elastic into eight equal sections and mark with pins. Then pin the elastic to the right side of the garment, matching edges and markings.

Several methods may be used to apply lingerie elastic to petticoats and panties. For a top stitched application, carefully stitch along lower, then upper edge of the elastic, stretching elastic out to meet the fabric as you stitch. Use either straight or zigzag stitch and 12 stitches per inch.

For the turned application, stitch elastic to the garment with straight stitch along the lower edge of the elastic, stretching elastic to meet the fabric as you stitch. Turn elastic to the wrong side and stitch again with a row of straight stitches along each edge or with one row of zigzag stitches along the bottom edge. Stretch the elastic to meet the fabric as you stitch.

If you use regular elastic rather than lingerie elastic, enclose it in a casing since the elastic will be uncomfortable next to the body. To make the casing, fold the edge down 3/4 inch and stitch along the cut edge, leaving a small opening. Insert elastic, overlap end 1/2 inch and stitch securely. Close opening. This method allows for easier replacement of the elastic than the top stitch methods.

LACE—When possible, attach lace while garment pieces are flat. For easier stitching when applying lace, hold the lace in place with magic Tape rather than pins.

To apply lace to straight edges, place the lace on the right side of the fabric and have the bottom edge of the lace even with the raw edge of the garment. Stitch with a single row of zigzag stitching or a double row of straight stitches along the top edge of the lace. Carefully trim fabric from under the lace close to the stitching.

SHELL EDGING—Shell edging is a more tailored hem finish than lace application, but adds a beautifully finished edge to your casual lingerie. Do shell edging by either hand or machine. By hand, trim hem allowance to 1/4 inch and fold to wrong side. Take two running stitches along the raw edge. Then take two stitches over the edge of the hem, pulling thread taut. This results in a scalloped effect.

To do this finish by machine, trim the hem allowance to 1/4 inch. Using the blind hem stitch, stitch the straight stitches along the raw edge of the fold. Use the widest zigzag stitch. The zigzag stitch pulls the edge up, creating the scallop effect.

Menthol Cough Drops good for bees

Cough drops for bees?

Not exactly. But the same menthol that soothes sore throats during head-cold season also helps honey bees with mites in their breathing tubes.

Mites living, feeding and reproducing in bee breathing tubes are killed in just three weeks by menthol fumes, said Dr. William T. Wilson, a U.S. Department of Agriculture entomologist. To kill the mite, beekeepers could put a wire mesh packet of menthol crystals in each hive.

"Fumes don't hurt honey bees but irritate them enough to make them fan their wings," said Wilson, who works for USDA's Agricultural Research Service. "Of course, this is what we want, because fanning spreads menthol fumes around the hive."

Wilson said that mites block oxygen flow to flight muscles so infested bees don't fly well. "If they can't fly, they can't collect the nectar they need to make honey." He does his mite research at the agency's Subtropical Agricultural Research Laboratory in Weslaco, Tex.

Heavily infested colonies in Mexico produced only one-eighth the honey of healthy colonies, according to University of Georgia studies. Losses like these could seriously threaten the $150 million a year U.S. honey industry.

Since 1984, the parasite has spread from Mexico to 31 of the United States, in all but the Rocky Mountain region. A common practice of northern U.S. beekeepers—bringing bees south for the winter—has moved the mite northward, Wilson said.

Some states have gotten rid of the mite by destroying infested hives—a costly practice. Threats of reinfestation or further spread still remain.

Because of fear of purchasing infested bees from the south, northerners starting out in the business have stopped buying queens or hives from southern breeders. Several dozen breeders have been driven out of business, Wilson said.

Treatment of an infested hive would cost only 50 cents to a dollar—a "reasonable cost" to a beekeeper, Wilson said. Flavor and quality of honey are unaffected.

Dream engineering project

Proposed timber bridge cuts taxpayer costs

By Patti Drapala
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

MISSISSIPPI STATE—An experimental timber bridge to be built on a Mississippi county road may have engineers dreaming and taxpayers saving money after the project is finished.

Timber has been used to build bridges in the northern United States as a construction alternative to conventional steel and concrete. Project organizers will build the timber bridge to show there is a reliable, less costly alternative to conventional materials.

"We're not talking about cutting down some trees and throwing them across a creek," said Bob Daniels, forestry utilization specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "This bridge will be a modern, engineered system."

Daniels attended a meeting on wood transfer technologies this spring in Madison, Wis. His interest sparked by the meeting and by the 1987 highway construction program, Daniels proposed the timber bridge to the Mississippi Department of Energy and Transportation.

The department recently awarded Daniels a $125,000 grant to begin the project. Other agencies involved with the timber bridge are the U.S.

Forest Service, the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis. the Forest Products Utilization Laboratory at Mississippi State University and the Mississippi county to be selected as the bridge site.

"People may think that wood is inferior," Daniels said. "No, wood is not inferior. The way that wood has been used in an engineered system has improved during the last 15 years."

Timber used in bridge construction has been tested for durability and stress. It must carry an 80,000-pound load, the same as steel and concrete.

Daniels said bridges made of timber are easily repaired and faster to install. Timber can cut construction costs by 25 percent and can be aesthetically pleasing as any modern steel structure.

Timber bridges are popular on two-lane roads in the North because wood resists corrosion from salt used to melt ice in winter.

An advantage timber bridges have for Mississippi tree farmers is the creation of a new market. Mississippi southern pine can be used to build Mississippi bridges.

"If this catches on in Mississippi, then possibly a new industry may be created," Daniels said.

After a site is chosen for the bridge, probably in September, the bridge will be built and outfitted with monitoring equipment. Drivers going through the county will use the bridge just as they would any other.

Daniels said once the bridge starts being used by motorists, it will be the focus of a statewide conference for engineers and government officials in the potential for timber bridge use in Mississippi.

Museum to show inmate art

An exhibition of art commemorating the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution by the staff, deputies, and prisoners of the Office of the Orleans Parish Criminal Sheriff will open at the New Orleans Museum of Art on Sept. 3.

Organized by the Orleans Parish Criminal Sheriff Charles C. Foti Jr. and NOMA, the exhibition 'We The People: A Quest For Liberty' will highlight major historical events which form the fabric of this nation's on-going quest for freedom for all people.

One of the highlights of the exhibition will be a 116 by 12 foot curved mural depicting the Revolutionary War encounter of the British ship Serapis in a desperate contest with the American ship Bonhomme Richard off the coast of Scotland Sept. 23, 1779.

It was during this battle that the most memorable of all stirrings calls to battle "I have not yet begun to fight" was attributed to American John Paul Jones.

The second half of this gigantic mural, constructed in 8 by 12 foot wooden sections by prison carpenters and welders, encompasses the decisive battle at Yorktown where the British forces led by Cromwell were defeated by General George Washington.

Depicted within the battle troops are black Americans and Indians who took part in this contest.

Other highlights of this tribute to the Bicentennial from within the Orleans Parish prison complex include: a full scale replica of the Liberty Bell made of wood, iron, and steel; a 4 by 10 foot table top mock battle scene with hand painted soldiers, horses, and equipment; a mural of Galvez's battles in Louisiana; and a huge hand lettered preamble to the United States Constitution.

ETV Brief

NOVA

Chemist George Kistiakowsky recounts his career to interviewer and fellow scientist Carl Sagan in the next "Nova" documentary, "Confessions of a Weaponsman," at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 8 on Mississippi ETV.

Another section of the exhibition will relate to the history of the 70,000 feet of space covered by the outdoor murals on exterior walls and roof of the Criminal Justice Complex area.

The murals date back about three and one half years, with the first being a Christmas scene of reindeer flying over the city distributing gifts to the children of the city (a program involving the Office of the Criminal Sheriff).

Following the success of the smaller murals several others have been completed, including one commemorating the Vietnam War which occupies 20,000 square feet on the old parish prison building. The Vietnam panorama is visible from several city blocks away.

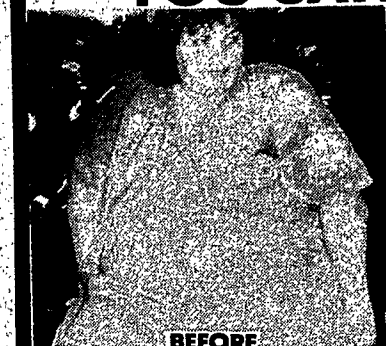

The Sheriff says the initial mural was a test to see what they could do. This is part of Foti's philosophy that along with the prison's several sports teams there should be "different strokes for different folks."

Now the art project has developed added dimensions. Foti hopes that visitors will see the murals as part of New Orleans' unique cityscape, and that locals' desire for art will be increased.

The theme of 'We The People: A Quest For Liberty' is very personal to Foti. He says "The quest for liberty didn't end with the last shot." He likens it to the quest for the Holy Grail—"It's a quest for an idea."

The exhibition will be on view through Sept. 27.

For good nutrition

Most Americans
need less sugar

By Melissa Mixon
Human Nutrition Specialist
Extension Service

There is no doubt that as a nation, Americans have a sweet tooth. It is estimated that each person consumes about two-thirds of a cup of sugar each day.

Not all of the sugar eaten in a day is added at the table. Sugars are found naturally in foods such as fruits, vegetables, milk, legumes and cereals.

What is sugar? Most people think of sugar as the granulated white substance in the sugar bowl that they use in coffee or cake batters. Actually this granulated sugar is sucrose, the most common sugar available. But this is only one of many different types of sweeteners used in the food supply.

Sugars are carbohydrates that provide our bodies with energy. Unlike other carbohydrates, sugars provide mainly calories and very few nutrients, therefore most people would benefit from eating less.

Reference is often made to sugar's role in causing many diseases, from diabetes to hyperactivity. Research does not support these claims. The only confirmed health risk associated with sugar in the diet is the development of dental caries or cavities.

Tooth decay is more than a matter of how much sugar is eaten. Both the form in which sugar is consumed and how often it is eaten are important. Sticky and chewy sugary foods that stay on the teeth longer cause more problems than other sweets.

Sugary foods eaten between meals are more likely to cause tooth decay than those eaten only at mealtimes.

Avoiding all foods that contain sugars is not practical or necessary. The amount of sugar and sweeteners in the diet can be reduced by following these suggestions:

- Read ingredient labels. Identify all the added sugars in a product. This includes ingredients such as sugar, sucrose, glucose, dextrose, sorbitol, fructose, maltose, lactose, mannitol, honey, corn syrup, high-fructose corn syrup, molasses and maple syrup. Select items lower in total sugar when possible.

- By fresh fruits or fruits packed in water, juice or light syrup rather than those in heavy syrup.

- Buy fewer foods that are high in sugar, such as prepared baked goods, candies, sweet desserts, soft drinks, and fruit-flavored punches and ades.

- In the kitchen, reduce the sugar in foods prepared at home. Try new recipes or adjust your own. Start by reducing the sugar gradually until you've decreased it by one-third or more.

- Experiment with spices such as cinnamon, cardamom, coriander, nutmeg and mace to improve the flavor of foods.

- Use home-prepared items with less sugar instead of commercially prepared ones that are higher in sugar.

- At the table, use less of all sugars. This includes white and brown sugar, honey, molasses and syrups.

- Reach for fresh fruit instead of sweet desserts or when you want a snack.

- Add less sugar to foods, coffee, tea, cereal or fruit. Get used to using half as much; then see if you can cut back more.

- Cut back on the number of soft drinks, punches and ades you drink. Include more fruit juices, milk and water.

Garden Park accredited

AMI Garden Park community Hospital has been awarded a Certificate of Accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH). "By receiving such accreditation re-confirms the efforts that the staff of Garden Park make to provide quality health care each day," stated L.V. Johnston, Executive Director for AMI Garden Park Community Hospital in Gulfport.

To become accredited, AMI Garden Park Community Hospital voluntarily requested an on-site evaluation by JCAH surveyors who applied national standards/objectives of quality patient care and safety of the environment in their survey which is done once every three years. These national standards represent a consensus among health care professionals and are periodically updated to reflect the changes in the delivery of health care.

AMI Garden Park Community Hospital is a 120 bed medical/surgical acute care facility dedicated to providing the Mississippi Gulf Coast with the finest health care available.

Small business tax
workshop slated

A free tax workshop for self-employed people and small business owners will be held on Thursday, Sept. 10 at the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce, 1401 20th Ave. the Internal Revenue Service says.

This workshop is presented as a public service through the Internal Revenue Service's Taxpayer Education Program and cosponsored by the chamber and Gulf Coast Small Business Development Center.

The workshop is divided into two sessions:

1) Income Tax - (9 a.m. - noon): Topics will include types of business organizations, recordkeeping and accounting practices, income and deductions on a Schedule C, self-employment tax, and estimated tax. Practical exercises will teach small business owners how to determine taxable income and how to complete required tax forms; and

2) Employment Taxes - (1:30 - 4:30 p.m.): Topics will include in-depth review of employer's responsibility for withholding income and social security taxes, depositing of Federal taxes using Federal Tax Deposit Coupons, and comprehensive exercises involving the completion of employment tax returns.

No advance registration is required. Participants may attend either session.

Concert Hall to visit

Tupelo, Laurel and Jackson

The next program in PRM's "Mississippi Concert Hall" series will feature four classical pieces performed in Tupelo, Laurel and Jackson. The program will air at 9 a.m., Thursday, Sept. 3 and again at 1 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 6.

For the opener, the brass of the Tupelo Symphony Orchestra performs Giovanni Gabrieli's Canzon noni toni a 12.

Harpsichordist John Paul and flutist Albert Lamar perform

George Frederick Handel's Sonata in C for Flute and Harpsichord, recorded at the Lauren Rogers Museum of Art in Laurel.

Two choral works by Mozart, Te Deum Laudamus, K. 141, and the motet Ave Verum, K. 618, are performed by Mississippi Camerata.

"Mississippi Concert Hall" is hosted and produced by William Fulton.

PRM is a division of Mississippi ETV.

Technology transfer seminar scheduled

With over $20 billion in federally funded research and development available each year, technology transfer has become an important concept.
